"BIG TOWN."

DODGE CITY'S QUIET BOOM.

THE CITY WILL BE SUPPLIED WITH "MODERN IMPROVEMENTS."

There have been few to speak Dodge City's good name or extol her enterprise. All of her worst features were paraded as though the sum and stock were villainy and vice. Under the dark shadow of wickedness has been peering the silver linings of thrift, enterprise and morality. Quietly and unobtrusively has the city progressed until at last all outward appearances warrant the proclamation of the city's boom. At no time was there any dispute as to which town would be the "Big Town" in Western Kansas. This distinction has always been placed at the shrine of Dodge, though through the blunders of her shame her identity could not be mistaken. Other towns have striven, and are putting on metropolitan airs, yet Dodge quietly moves on to the proud position of the "Big Town" of the western plains. More pretensions towns have assumed the prerogative of greatness and holiness, but Dodge persists in getting there. Dodge has no rival. Other towns have blown and busted the boom, immaturely conceived. The time has arrived for Dodge City to assert her superiority and claim the boom to be full-fledged, and made of all wool and a yard wide.

At least twenty-five brick store buildings are in course of erection, and not less than five hundred residence houses are building or are planned for building during the season.

A street railway company has been organized, a charter applied for, and the right of way granted by the city council. Two miles of track are to be laid; one line to run across the Arkansas river bridge and connect with the South Side, one line to connect the east and west parts of the city. The cars have already been ordered.

At the last meeting of the city council the exclusive franchise was given to the electric light company for a period of 21 years.

The city council have under consideration the adoption of a system of water works.

A telephone company has the right to construct telephone lines within the city, and will extend the construction of lines to neighboring towns.

The council appointed a committee to select a site for a town hall. The union church site seems the most appropriate site and will probably be selected by the committee.

There are plenty of substantial evidences of industry and enterprise in Dodge to warrant the statement that the name of "Big Town" belongs to none other. No town hereabouts has the resources at command, nor has any town the country paying tribute in business like Dodge possesses. There is but one geographical and topographical position for a "big town" in Western Kansas, and that is the site on which this city stands.

It is no stretch of imagination to concede to Dodge City a population of 5,000 people in less than two years. A population of 10,000 in less than 10 years is no fancy sketch of visions. More sanguine people with more foresight than real estate predict a growth of 25,000 or 30,000 within a few short years. This is no idle boasting purely for speculative purposes, but is the firm and honest belief of men who look at this matter from a disinterested standpoint. The readers of the TIMES know that we have not given to boasting, nor is the character of the people of this city; but at this stage of the city's progress it is well to utter the facts and predictions as they present themselves. The people of Dodge are industrious, energetic and move along firmly. They invest their earnings in city improvements, and have an abiding faith in the growth and future of the town. This is what counts, and this is a guarantee of that stability and faith necessary to a live, progressive town.

FACTS SPEAK. Argument is unnecessary.

The biggest canal in Kansas is now complete and water will be turned into it in a few days. The canal is forty feet in width at the bottom, six feet in depth, and seventy miles in length. It has cost three-fourths of a million of dollars, and was built by A. T. Soule, the Hop Bitters man of Rochester, New York. The purpose it is designated for is to irrigate and reclaim the arid region around Spearville, in Ford county.

We find the above item in an exchange. The farmers who are cultivating the "arid region around Spearville," will be very much surprised when these lands are reclaimed. "The best the canal can do will be to supply water to live stock and the water works company of Spearville. The rains are sufficient in this country for purposes of agriculture, and there are no "arid lands" in need of "reclamation."

Cimarron expects to work off a little soreness. The New West says: An effort is being made by some of our citizens to contest the late Railroad bond election. Money has been raised and an attorney secured for this object. Every one feels confident of victory as the result of the late election were so open and obvious.

Miss Newby's Lecture.

Miss Jennie Newby, State Temperance lecturer for the Prohibition party, lectured in the M. E. Church, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, on the cause of prohibition. Of her Wednesday evening lecture we make a synopsis: The lecturer said she would talk to the audience as co-workers. She could not speak of intemperance without the revolting scenes coming to mind—it was the same old story. We want to find a remedy for this evil. It seems strange that drunkenness has gone on, and no general warning has been given. At this time a great battle is going on, and we look at the churches the one to carry on this great work. Our civilization is on the plan of that brotherhood that should do good to all mankind. We measure the methods of our work by the tendencies. The church has not been able to cope with the evil of intemperance. There was a time when the church was imbued with the evil. The church is yet involved in its money interests with the liquor traffic, so that the church is not prepared to preach against this evil. But the speaker was glad the church was coming into a position to battle for prohibition. There has been an upturn and down town affinity between church and saloon, so that the church could not cope with the evil. The mission of the church is to inaugurate temperance reform. A part of church work was to take hold of saloons, as our missionaries do the heathen. There has been a disposition to shift the responsibility upon some one else. Miss Newby believed in prayer and churches, and God's commands to destroy the enemy. Put this away like says to the distiller.

If the church would take hold, the whisky evil would soon be wiped out. It must be done on the run.

Another agency, the lecturer said, is the educational part of the work. It is a wonder men don't let whisky alone when they know the danger it leads. Believed men do not understand the knowledge of it. There was something wrong in the educational institutions of the country. Men do many things who have education, but who are morally wrong. The heart as well as the head must be educated before the country can prosper. She spoke of a saloon alongside of a college. There was too much education in the saloon. Instances where boys grew up to be tramps, &c. It is the saloon that will overthrow our government if it ever does fail. There were more saloons than colleges of usefulness. Something must be done about it, so that our boys can be trained to see the evils of intemperance. It is positive cruelty to a child to grow up and not know the evils.

The lecturer spoke of woman's work in the cause. It was supposed women were only fit to pray and cry. But the men are finding out that the weaker vessels can do. And wonder what women cannot do. If a few W. C. T. U. women are doing anything the whisky men are scared to death, and wonder what will be done next. The work the women are doing is wholesome. It is used to be that women could not speak. The first woman that led the temperance crusade was a little Presbyterian woman—she led a band of women who closed up the saloons. It was like a whirlwind, but if it did not accomplish a great deal, woman understood her position and ability, and out of this crusade grew the W. C. T. U. Difficulties brought about the petitions to the legislators, asking the right kind of laws. No one knows how little encouragement the women received at the hands of the legislators. The usual legislative palaver was given by legislators about their duty to their constituents. The women looked after the cause. They found whisky the controlling element to uphold legislation. Women began crusading politics. Speaking of Gov. Martin, she said he took better care of the sick horses than he did of the women. She thought the sick horses amounted to more than the women politically.

She did not think the W. C. T. U. would make any mistake about the course in regard to prohibitory laws. Of Mrs. Willard she said she would as soon trust her judgment as that of any man. People would be surprised to see the amount of work done by women. It is safe to trust them with this work. It has made them grander. It makes them better and gives them broader minds to go out and do this work.

The legal side of the question was discussed. Our people made the mistake that the liquor traffic was right, and they regulated it by license.

A majority of drunkards are men who inherit the disease. Every cent taken is a price of blood and wrong-doing. It is consolation to the liquor dealers because the town is in partnership with them. The demand will be as just as great whether there are many or few saloons, or whether the whisky is poor or adulterated. The principle is to take it up by the roots. Every law is a bad law that doesn't help the people. Every law that protects evil is a curse and is destructive to the people.

When a nation has a vice that it cannot put down it means the destruction of the nation. The history of the country shows that such a nation cannot exist. Anarchy and murder and destruction follows. Speaking of the slavery question, she said when men found where they belonged they soon rallied. This country cannot exist half drunk and half sober. When people find whisky must be put down in order to sustain the country they will be found on the side of right. The speaker believed it was safe to trust the American people and remove the machinery that prevents the proper execution of the laws. Men must be put out of politics who sustain the whisky traffic. There were scores of men on the fence waiting to see which side to jump on. It is hard work to get the people to see which is right, but she was glad the people were awakening. A politician in Michigan said if the Republican party wanted to get into power again it must do right. Must have a moral principle to take up. The prohibition party had got down on its knees to the Republican party, but they would not assist it. The politicians are getting left. The fence riders will jump off. They will come out all right after awhile.

If you will look at the cause of strikes you will see whisky is the cause. Keep whisky out of men and you can control them. Men are good and right, but men who spend time and money at saloons it is difficult to control them. Saloon men were the cause of strikes—most of our troubles can be traced to the saloons. Workmen discuss labor troubles in saloons, when half drunk, and the demand for more pay is made at the instance of the saloon keeper.

If our ancestors had reasoned like we reason to-day with the liquor traffic, we would be slaves now. They did right that we might have a free country. The compromise of the slavery question resulted in blood. This could have been averted with the stroke of a pen. The evil will not go in a day. We shall always have to preach temperance personally, but the legal question will be settled. Legalized liquor will not exist, but the effects or scars will last long. We see the effects of slavery yet. It will be a long time before the effects are wiped out. So with intemperance. Prohibition is growing. There is a failure, but it is not in prohibition. The mistakes were pointed out in the Thursday evening lecture.

We failed to attend the Thursday evening lecture, but understand Miss Newby's efforts surpassed that of the lecture of Wednesday night. She arraigned the Governor, the Attorney General and the Republican party for cowardice and duplicity in dealing with the liquor traffic. Those people who heard her, express satisfaction.

A new thing, as well as an important one has been established in the large business house of Lowrey Bros., in the way of gaslights. The gas well is planted on the end of their lot just back of the store and cost $250. In the different rooms there are thirteen jets furnishing a brilliant light for the entire building. The trial was made last Monday evening and proved successful from the very start. This is a new feature worthy of note and now other places of business will follow suit until the entire city will be lit with gas. Lowrey Bros. are doing an immense business here and they have as fine stock of goods as we have seen in the west.—Larned Chronicle.

There is a possibility that Sam Jones, the noted preacher, will visit Larned next fall. His engagements are made until next October, and he has promised to visit this section on his way to the Pacific coast. His religious work goes greatly to the credit of the noted evangelist, Moody and Sankey, or even Harrison, the boy preacher. Sam's fort is in setting the people wild and carrying everything by storm. His ability in that direction is great.—Eagle Optic.

Oh! Lord, is Larned so deeply steeped in sins that the local divines must give up the work and call on Sam Jones? If that eminent divine ever comes to Kansas, Great Bend is ready to raise a contribution to keep him in Dodge City a week. But as to Larned, we had no idea that it was so bad.—Great Bend Register.

It is worth remembering that nobody enjoys the nicest surroundings if in bad health. There are miserable people about to-day with one foot in the grave, whom a bottle of Parker's Tonic would do more good than all the doctors and medicines they have ever used.
